

At-A-Glance

- CAMP was founded in 1994 in Chicago as a volunteer organization.
- CAMP's mission is to empower each other and the group to advance and excel, not only in their careers, but also their broader community and philanthropic efforts.
- The association has more than 7,000 mid-to senior-level Muslim professional men and women representing various industries including the arts, business, engineering, finance, law, media, politics, healthcare, and social sciences.
- CAMP has chapters in Chicago, New Jersey, New York, Philadelphia and Washington D.C.
- CAMP chapters host monthly networking events called "Power Hours," which feature dynamic speakers discussing their field of work and career paths to success.
- CAMP chapters also host other networking and community service events around the year, including collaborative events with other local professional organizations.
- CAMP events aim to help attendees to invest in themselves through interactive networking, negotiations, and communications workshops/events.
- CAMP's marquee events include its annual leadership summit and annual dinner.
- CAMP Leadership Summit has brought together more than 250 Muslim-American professionals.
- The CAMP Summit aims to provide attendees with the training and tools that will help them evolve as leaders. Attendees have a unique opportunity to meet Muslims from various industries, network, hone leadership skills, and engage in timely and necessary discussions.
- CAMP Summit keynote speakers have included: Reza Aslan, acclaimed writer, scholar and founder of AslanMedia; Shazi Visram, founder and CEO of HAPPYBABY; Hosain Rahman, CEO and founder of Jawbone, and Hayat Sindi, a entrepreneur in biotechnology.
- CAMP Summit sponsors include Islamic Relief, Johnson & Johnson, GlaxoSmithKline, AmeriHealth Mercy, and RomAsia Bank, among many others.
